The term "the date following the original deadline for making the payment of such tax" shall refer to the following:

1. For the tax which should be declared and paid voluntarily by a taxpayer under the Act, the commencement date shall be the date following the expiration date of the statutory period for filing the tax return.

2. For the tax which should be declared by a taxpayer and made the payment or exemption after assessment, the commencement date shall be the date following the expiration date of the statutory period for filing the tax return.

3. For the tax which should be assessed by the tax collection authorities based on the data recorded in the Tax Registration Book or obtained through investigation, the commencement date shall be the date following the expiration date of the period of collection of such tax.

4. For the stamp tax payable by a taxpayer under the act, the commencement date shall be the date following the date of affixing the tax stamps to the taxable document under the act.

5. For the tariff which should be paid by a taxpayer under the act, the commencement date shall be the date following the assessment or exemption date made by Customs.

If a penalty for tax evasion is imposed on a taxpayer in accordance with Paragraph 8 Article 7 of the Act, the belated surcharges and interests of Paragraph 8 Article 7 of the Act are exempted.

Unless otherwise provided for under this Act or the Enforcement Rules, the provisions of the Tax Collection Act, Customs Act, and any other laws shall be applicable, mutatis mutandis, to the provisions of Paragraph 3 Article 7 of the Act about belated surcharges and interests.

Article 6

The term "more than two estimation means" in Paragraph 3 Article 14 of the Act refers to tax collection authorities shall make estimation according to the means which is nearest to the actual amount when more than two means exist unless another method of estimation is provided.

Article 7

Where the tax collection authorities have no discretion in imposing penalties on taxpayers in accordance with tax laws or otherwise, Article 16, Paragraph 3 of this Act shall not be applicable.

Article 8

To carry out the protection of taxpayers as stipulated in Article 20 of this Act, the tax collection authorities shall set up at least one taxpayer ombudsman, based on the specific conditions of the region, tax items, and tax collection practices. Additionally, ombudsmen shall have a specialty in law, taxation, or accounting, and have a higher level of position.

Taxpayer ombudsmen shall submit an annual work report to the Ministry of Finance every year.

Article 9

During the periods of taxation, if any additional tax is found to be assessable on the same taxpayer under investigation, the taxpayer shall still be required to make supplemental payment thereof and/or be subject to punishment for insufficient payment of said tax in accordance with Article

21, Paragraph 2 of the Tax Collection Act or other relevant laws and regulations, except in the case where the fact is in the previous scope of the administrative remedy.

Article 10

The term "the tax payable has not been determined over 15 years after the date on which the revoked or amended judgment is made by the court, may not be assessed again" in Paragraph 4 Article 21 of the Act refers to the commencement date being the date as follows:

1.The date on which the court initially made the revocation or alteration of the judgement after the implementation of this law.

2.When taxpayer appeals or protests against the final adjudication of the First Instance, the date on which the higher administrative court initially made the revocation or alteration of the judgment after the implementation of this law.

The term "the date on which the court made the revocation or alteration of the verdict" depicted in the preceding paragraph means its announcement, or, if it is not announced, upon its publication.

The term "not in this case" in the proviso of Paragraph 4 Article 21 of the Act refers to being assessed again even though the tax payable has not been determined over 15 years.
