Article 3-1

On the 25th day of every odd month, a million prize, one to twenty sets of winning numbers exclusive to non-physical electronic invoices and a thousand prize, one thousand to eight thousand sets of winning numbers exclusive to non-physical electronic invoices will be drawn from the non-physical electronic invoices issued in the previous period. The cash awards for each prize are as follows:

1. Million prize : If the eight-digit number shown on the non-physical electronic invoices is identical to the winning number drawn for the million prize, the winner receives a cash award of NT$1,000,000.

2. Thousand prize : If the eight-digit number shown on the non-physical electronic invoices is identical to the winning number drawn for the thousand prize, the winner receives a cash award of NT$2,000.

The number of the sets of the winning alphabetic letters and numbers referred to in the preceding paragraph will be publicly announced by the designated unit before the draw is made. In the case of any change to the number of the sets of the winning alphabetic letters and numbers described in the preceding paragraph, such change will be publicly announced by the designated unit before the draw is made.

The winning alphabetic letters and numbers of non-physical electronic invoices, and the deadline for claiming the prizes for each session will be posted on the websites of the MOF and its affiliated competent tax authorities on the day following the draw.

Non-physical electronic invoice means the uniform invoice issued, transferred and obtained by the purchaser according to the conditions given in the third paragraph of Article 7 of “The Regulations Governing the Use of Uniform Invoices” when the business entity sells goods and services to the purchaser using the carriers approved by the MOF, and the purchaser may designate that the non-physical electronic invoice shall be donated to a social welfare organization via the use of a donation code, however, such electronic invoices as are printed or certification copies of electronic invoices given to the purchaser before the prize-drawing shall be excluded.

Article 12

The act of reporting or cracking criminal activity involving uniform invoice forgery or sale of stolen uniform invoices or setup of bogus businesses where the case is established by the competent authority and turned over to the district prosecutor's office, and the prosecutor's office brings charges thereto, will be rewarded with cash within ten days after the competent authority receives a copy of the indictment:

For informant:

A person reporting a case of forgery of uniform invoice which is subsequently cracked by the law enforcement authority will receive a reward of NT$120,000; the reward will be doubled if the offender(s) responsible for platemaking is also seized.

A person reporting a case of sale of stolen uniform invoices which is subsequently cracked by the law enforcement authority will receive a reward of NT$60,000.

A person reporting a case of setting up a bogus business which is subsequently cracked by the law enforcement authority will receive a reward of NT$30,000; no additional reward will be dispensed if the act of reporting leads to the cracking of other bogus business cases.

If there is more than one informant in a case, the cash reward will be split among the informants.

For law enforcement agencies:

A law enforcement agency that cracks a case of forgery of uniform invoice on its own initiative will receive a reward of NT$120,000; the reward will be doubled if the offender(s) responsible for platemaking is also seized.

A law enforcement agency that cracks a case of uniform invoice forgery based on leads provided by an informant will receive a reward of NT$60,000; the reward will be doubled if the offender(s) responsible for platemaking is also seized.

A law enforcement agency that cracks a case of sale of stolen uniform invoices will receive a reward of NT$60,000 if the agency initiates the investigation on its own or a reward of NT$30,000 if the case is cracked based on leads provided by an informant.

A law enforcement agency that cracks a case of uniform invoice forgery or sale of stolen uniform invoices based on the referral of another government agency will receive a reward of NT$12,000.

A law enforcement agency that cracks a case of bogus business setup on its own initiative or based on leads provided by an informant will receive a reward of NT$30,000; no additional reward will be dispensed if the same case leads to the cracking of other bogus business cases.

A law enforcement agency that cracks a case of bogus business setup based on the referral of another government agency or on the investigation of a general tax evasion case will receive a reward of NT$12,000.

Where a law enforcement agency receives assistance from another law enforcement agency in cracking a case, the said agency should provide twenty percent (20%) of the cash reward it has received to the other agency

A tax agency or competent authority that cracks a case as mentioned above will receive commendation, whereas the reward provisions in the foregoing paragraph do not apply.
