The interest accrued for installments payment prescribed under these Regulations shall be calculated on a monthly basis, with the tax payable divided and paid in multiple installments, up to a maximum of thirty-six installments. The taxpayer shall be charged the daily interest accrued on the amount of such supplementary tax at the interest rate based on the fixed interest rate on January 1 of each year for one-year time deposit of postal savings, for the period from the date following the original deadline for making the payment of such tax to the date of payment of tax. However, the provisions regarding the accrual of interest shall not apply to delinquent reporting surcharge, non-reporting surcharge, or fines. When the tax authority accepts a taxpayer's application for installments payment of the tax payable with accrued interest, it shall, in accordance with the following provisions, exercise discretion in approving the number of installments:

1. Where the amount of tax payable is less than NT$200,000, payment may be made in two to six installments.
2. Where the amount of tax payable is NT$200,000 or more but less than NT$1,000,000, payment may be made in two to twelve installments.
3. Where the amount of tax payable is NT$1,000,000 or more but less than NT$5,000,000, payment may be made in two to twenty-four installments.

The amount of each installment shall not be less than a specific amount of payment waived in accordance with Article 25-1 of the Act.

Article 7

A taxpayer applying for installments payment of the tax payable with accrued interest shall, within the prescribed tax payment period, submit an application to the tax authority using the form prescribed by the Ministry of Finance, together with supporting documents.

A taxpayer who, due to force majeure or causes not attributable to them, is unable to submit the application referred to in the preceding paragraph within the prescribed tax payment period may, within ten (10) days after the cessation of such cause, apply for restoration to the original state by submitting supporting documents. At the same time, the taxpayer may file a supplementary application for installments payment of the tax payable, including accrued interest.

Article 8

A tax payment that has been approved for payment by installments with accrued interest shall not be re-applied for installments again based on the same reason.

Where a taxpayer has tax payable approved for installments payment with accrued interest and, on different reason, reapplies for installments payment with accrued interest for the unpaid tax amount, the tax authority shall, based on the grounds for the current application and the amount of unpaid tax, approve the number of additional installments with accrued interest in accordance with the provisions of Paragraphs 2 and 3 of Article 6. The total period of all installments plans approved on different grounds shall not exceed three (3) years.

Article 9

In the event that a taxpayer fails to make timely payment of any tax for which the payment by installments has been approved, the tax authority shall, in accordance with Article 27 of the Act, issue a written notice demanding payment of the remaining tax in a lump sum within ten (10) days. Interest shall accrue on a daily basis, calculated from the day following the original payment due date to the due date specified in the notice for the unpaid installments, based on the fixed interest rate for one-year time deposits of postal savings as announced on January 1 of each respective year, and shall be collected together with the tax payable. In the event that the taxpayer is subject to a delinquency charge while further fails to pay such tax within the given time limit, the tax authorities shall forward the case to compulsory execution.

Where the taxpayer pays the overdue tax before the service of the payment notice issued pursuant to the preceding paragraph, a belated surcharge shall be imposed in accordance with the Act, calculated from the day following the due date for the installment payment; the case shall not be processed under Article 27 of the Act.

Article 10

Where, prior to the promulgation and enforcement of these Regulations, the tax authority has approved the taxpayer's application for installments payment of income tax with interest in accordance with the relevant provisions, any remaining tax after the promulgation and enforcement of these Regulations shall be subject to the provisions hereunder. However, in cases where the provisions in effect prior to the promulgation and enforcement of these Regulations are more favorable to the taxpayer, the most favorable provisions for the taxpayer shall apply.

The period for which a taxpayer applies to pay the remaining tax with accrued interest in installments pursuant to Paragraph 2, Article 8, combined with the period previously approved by the tax authority for installments payment with accrued interest prior to the promulgation and enforcement of these Regulations, shall not exceed three (3) years in total.

Article 11
