Article 5

When the tax authorities conduct audits in accordance with Article 43-4 of the Income Tax Act, they are responsible for providing the proof of the constituent elements. However, the domestic resident, domestic profit-seeking enterprise, or foreign profit-seeking enterprise with a fixed place of business in the Republic of China which makes significant management decisions still has the obligation to assist in the reporting of the required information according to the Tax Act and the Regulations.

When conducting an investigation, tax authorities may, pursuant to Article 30 of the Tax Collection Act, require the domestic resident, domestic profit-seeking enterprise, or foreign profit-seeking enterprise with a fixed place of business in the Republic of China making significant management decisions to provide information related to such investigation. After a foreign profit-seeking enterprise is recognized by the tax authorities to be eligible under Article 43-4 of the Income Tax Act, such foreign profit-seeking enterprise shall, within one month following the tax authorities' recognition, decide on its own discretion to appoint the domestic resident or the responsible person of the domestic profit-seeking enterprise making significant management decisions to act as its responsible person in the Republic of China, and shall prepare the documents specified in the preceding article, file for registration of the place of effective management at the tax authorities of the domestic resident's registered household or of the domestic profit-seeking enterprise's registered place, and such registration shall take effect on the registration date. Where the registration of the place of effective management is not filed within the prescribed time limit, the place of effective management shall take effect from the date following the end of the one-month period.

Within three years following the date the Regulations come into force, the tax authorities shall report to the Ministry of Finance for an approval with respect to a foreign profit-seeking enterprise having been recognized by the tax authorities to be eligible under Article 43-4 of the Income Tax Act based on the preceding three paragraphs; if necessary, the prescribed time limit may be extended for another three years by the Ministry of Finance.

Article 6

Where a foreign profit-seeking enterprise having been approved or recognized by the tax authorities to be eligible under Article 43-4 of the Income Tax Act, if it fails to file for registration of its place of effective management within the prescribed time limit, the tax authorities may appoint the domestic resident or responsible person of the domestic profit-seeking enterprise making significant management decisions to act as such foreign profit-seeking enterprise's responsible person, and the appointed responsible person shall file for registration of the place of effective management based on the domestic resident's registered household, or on the domestic profit-seeking enterprise's registered place in accordance with the preceding two articles. The foreign profit-seeking enterprise and the appointed responsible person shall act in compliance with articles 7 and 8 from the date following the end of the prescribed time limit.

If the responsible person appointed by the tax authorities disagrees with the appointment in the preceding paragraph, such responsible person may file an administrative appeal and administrative litigation in accordance with the law.

Article 7

In the case of a foreign profit-seeking enterprise under Article 43-4 of the Income Tax Act, the responsible person appointed pursuant to the preceding three articles shall file for provisional payment, tax return, undistributed earnings, and income basic tax, and shall settle the tax payment from the date following the filing date, registration date, or the end of the prescribed time limit.

Where the business operation period from the date following the filing date, registration date, or the end of the prescribed time limit to the last date of the fiscal year is less than one year, the amount of income derived from such period shall first be converted into corresponding annual income according to the proportion of the length of the period to the year, and the amount of income tax shall then be determined by the tax rate applicable to such annual income but paid based on the original proportion for the period in which business is actually operated. Where the business operation period is less than one month, it shall be taken as one month.

Where the foreign profit-seeking enterprise in the first paragraph fails to file for provisional payment, tax return, undistributed earnings, income basic tax, and fails to settle the tax payment, the tax authorities shall make assessments of the provisional payment, income amount, undistributed earnings, income basic tax, and payable tax amount of such foreign profit-seeking enterprise, with the assessment notice and tax demand notice, and serve them to the responsible person under the preceding three articles to pay within the prescribed time limit .

Where the foreign profit-seeking enterprise in the first paragraph has an income derived from sources in the Republic of China from the date following its filing date, registration date, or the end of the prescribed time limit, it shall present to its tax withholder or payer the approval (recognition) letter of the tax authorities evidencing its eligibility under Article 43-4 of the Income Tax Act, and the tax withholder or payer shall withhold income tax, submit and issue the withholding (exemption) certificates, dividend vouchers and relevant certificates in accordance with the provisions concerning making payments to a domestic profit-seeking enterprise in the Income Tax Act. Where, pursuant to Paragraph 1, Article 16, Paragraph 4, Article 22-7, and Paragraph 4, Article 22-16 of the Offshore Banking Act, the interest, income derived from the transaction of structured products, and insurance payments paid by an offshore banking unit, offshore securities unit, or offshore insurance unit to the foreign profit-seeking enterprise is exempt from income tax withholding, the foreign profit-seeking enterprise shall act in compliance with the first paragraph.

Article 8

Starting from the date following its filing date, registration date, or the end of the prescribed time limit under articles 4 through 6, a foreign profit-seeking enterprise eligible under Article 43-4 of the Income Tax Act shall be deemed as a profit-seeking enterprise incorporated according to the Republic of China' s laws, and shall recognize the payment of various kinds of income derived from sources in the Republic of China in accordance with Article 8. The responsible person under articles 4 through 6 shall act as the tax withholder, and shall withhold income tax from various income payments, submit and issue the withholding (exemption) certificates in accordance with Articles 88, 89, 92, and 94-1 of the Income Tax Act. If the foreign profit-seeking enterprise distributes dividends or earnings to its shareholders, it shall submit and issue the dividend vouchers in accordance with Article 102-1 of the Income Tax Act.

The term "profit-seeking enterprise incorporated according to the Republic of China' s laws" in the preceding paragraph shall include the sole proprietorship, partnership, company, cooperative, limited partnership, and profit-seeking entity in any other form of organization incorporated according to laws and regulations of the Republic of China.

Starting from the date following its filing date, registration date, or the end of the prescribed time limit, any earnings which are subject to tax under Article 43-4 of the Income Tax Act and are distributed to shareholders by the foreign profit-seeking enterprise in the first paragraph shall be treated as income derived from sources in the Republic of China.

Article 9

Where a foreign profit-seeking enterprise selects to be eligible for Article 43-4 of the subject Regulations starting from its filing date, but as of its filing date fails to file for provisional payment, tax return, undistributed earnings, and the income basic tax, and fails to settle the tax payment within the prescribed time limit under the Income Tax Act and the Income Basic Tax Act, the responsible person shall file a tax return and settle the tax payment within one month starting from the date following the registration date. If it has subsequently filed a tax return and settled the tax payment within the prescribed time limit, it may be exempt from any delinquent interest or fines for delinquent reporting, non-reporting, and delinquent tax payment under the Income Tax Act; if it has subsequently failed to file a tax return and settle the tax payment within the prescribed time limit, it shall be liable for any delinquent interest or fines for delinquent reporting, non-reporting, and delinquent tax payment.

Where, as of its registration date, the foreign profit-seeking enterprise has failed to withhold income tax from various income payments, to submit and to issue the relevant certificates in accordance with the Income Tax Act, the tax withholder or payer shall, within one month starting from the date following the registration date, settle the unpaid or underpaid tax, submit the withholding (exemption) certificates, dividend vouchers and relevant certificates to the tax authorities, and issue them to the taxpayer. If it has subsequently withheld, submitted and issued certificates within the prescribed time limit, it may be exempt from penalties under the Income Tax Act; if it has subsequently failed to withhold, submit, and issue certificates within the prescribed time limit, it shall be liable for the penalties under the Income Tax Act.

The tax payment to be settled within the prescribed time limit in the preceding two paragraphs shall be subject to the interest surcharge under Paragraph 3, Article 48-1 of the Tax Collection Act, until the payment is settled.
